No parade for Camelot

Casino Magic withdraws backing

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
AND JANET MCQUEEN

Like the mythical kingdom of Camelot, the fledgling carnival krewe's parade has disappeared from the Mardi Gras scene, at least for this year.

"Casino Magic has decided not to go forth with the Krewe of Camelot Mardi Gras parade at this time," Casino Magic public relations manager Len James Giacone Friday.

"We started a little too late for it to be the magnitude of what we wanted," said Giacone. Plans for the new krewe were announced in early December, with memberships open to local residents and tourists.

The parade was to have been Mardi Gras Day, in conjunction with the traditional Krewe of Real People parade.

Johnson said he was disappointed, and even if the Camelot could not have a large parade, they should at least parade with what they do have.

"We started a little too late for it to be the magnitude of what we wanted."

—Giacone

Giacone commented Casino Magic felt could not go through with the parade, as it would have been on a small scale and not in the fashion they had planned.

Real People captain Charles

"Many people will be disappointed," he commented. "They were looking forward to the Krewe's addition."

Johnson said he would meet

Election time

Registration and qualification deadlines loom for city elections

Municipal elections in Bay St. Louis begin May 4, but unregistered voters and potential candidates have other dates to remember.

If you want to vote in the municipal elections, but you are not registered or have moved since the previous election, March 6 is the deadline to use mail-in registration.

"Using mail-in registration is convenient especially for people whose work or physical limitations make it difficult to go to the courthouse," said Secretary of State Dick Molpus. "Tens of thousands of Mississippians have used mail-in registration since it became law in July 1992."

Applications can be obtained from the offices of municipal or circuit clerks, and public libraries.

REGISTRATION REMINDER

"Mail-in registration is an effective method for individual citizens, activist groups or political parties to take it upon themselves to promote greater involvement in local elections," Molpus noted.

However, he reminded persons who will sign applications as witnesses that they must be registered voters of the same county as the applicant.

For in-person registration, qualified residents may do so in the circuit clerk of municipal clerk's office.

Two dates are important for registration in clerks' offices:

- Friday, April 2 — to register to vote in the municipal clerk's office, located in City Hall

- Saturday, April 3 — by noon, to register to vote in the Road condition delays medical response time

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Within hours of the death of a Shoreline Park woman Friday, county workers were spreading a load of sand onto a muddy area of road leading to her home.

According to Sheriff Ronnie Peterson, an emergency medical call was received at 7:16 a.m.

Sergeant George Burtleson was dispatched to 10196 Bayou View Drive East and arrived at 7:27 a.m.

Burtleson described driving through the muddy area immediately before and leading to the Bayou View Drive East address. He said he drove through it and upon turning the vehicle around to exit the muddy area slid into a ditch.

Mobile Medic arrived at 7:50 a.m., according to Burtleson, and upon viewing the bogged patrol car parked and walked to the home of the emergency caller.

Peterson said the distance from the home to the parked Mobile Medic unit was approxmated at a half block.

He added, Mrs. Mary Etta Davidson, 53, was transported to Hancock Medical Center (HMC) where she was pronounced dead.

A HMC spokesperson stated, "Her heart had just stopped. She had a complete arrest at home."

Davidson's neighbor, Sue Kelly, stated, "I feel if the county had fixed the road as requested, five minutes may

Hancock School Board defers decision on Emergency Plan

BY LIZ HAAS

The Hancock County School Board deferred a decision to accept an Emergency Operation Plan for the Hancock County School District at Wednesday's meeting.

Concerns were expressed by some board members over parts of the plan. The board opted to review information and discuss it with representatives from the Civil Defense and the Hancock County Sheriff's office.

The board approved:

- the minutes of January 11 and 19;
- the agenda;
- resignation of Machele Jordan, part-time cafeteria worker at Hancock High, to be placed on the substitute worker list; Joyce Strong, bus driver, effective January 29; and Charles Duffy, tennis coach, effective February 3;

—to employ James E. Nicholson, Janet Sue Kirk, and Hazel Spiers, substitute bus drivers for the remainder of the school year, pending certification; Janet Kirk, cafeteria substitute; Patricia Roberts, Kiana Boudan, Jeffrey W. Lott, Debra Fowler and Darla Moyle, substitute teachers at Hancock Junior-Senior High; Barbara LaFontaine, substitute teacher, Gulfview Elementary; Carl Bardwell, tennis coach retroactive to February 8;

Have bus, need driver

School districts experience difficulty retaining bus drivers

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

A bus driver's job is not as easy as one may think.

The responsibility of transporting 70 children, give or take a few, is quite imposing.

Should the 70 or so children riding the bus behave as darlings from heaven, there are still the everyday safety fears of functioning brakes and potential colliding vehicles.

Should they behave as average kids, there are usually distractions added to the driving.

The bus driver is the first and last school employee a child contacts during a school day, and retaining the service has always been and remains a problem for most school districts.

Bay-Waveland School District Superintendent Paul Tisdale attributes some of the problem to the low pay.

A bus driver for the Bay-Waveland district drives two routes per day, morning and afternoon. To complete a route it takes from a half-hour to one hour.

Drivers are paid $9.02 per route on an average.

Just this year, Bay-Waveland drivers received a 3.6

percent or $120 per year increase. The district also adopted a pay scale which increases with experience.

According to Tisdale, an average driver earns $3,300 per year for 180 days of work.

On a per hour basis, the rate compares favorably with minimum wage of $4.25 per hour.

The disadvantage to the job is its part time offering. Most people seeking work need more than $3,300 a year to exist.

To solve the dilemma, the district offers a custodian position in conjunction with the driving job.

The disadvantage is should a class desire to take a field trip, a driver/custodian must leave his or her school duties and the school is minus a custodian during that time.

Children in the Bay-Waveland district are dependent upon availability of drivers for field trips.

Transportation director W.J. Cameron reported the chances of taking 200 children to one event is slight compared to two classes of 50 or 60 children.

Reflections

On Life

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

Criteria
of love

How do you know whether you love God or not? According to the Bible, the answer is simple. If you love God, you will love those who are in His image.

Wishing people well is the universal root form and, therefore, criterion of love. It is the same paean of Good News which burst upon a sleeping world on that first Christmas morning, wishing goodwill to all peoples everywhere.

God personally put the criteria of love in place, because "God so loved the world that he gave his only-begotten Son, that whoever believes in him will be saved" (Jn. 3: 16).

So ask yourself: Are you about wishing evil or wishing well? And, in order to answer this, what are the criteria against which you measure your well-wishing or evil-wishing?

If you fancy yourself above anyone else, except where it is obvious that God made an individual difference or gift in you, it is presumptuous, vain, selfish and hateful. This is definitely a form of implicit evil-wishing.

Even where God has endowed you with a superior gift of some kind, it is vainglorious and obnoxious to think yourself superior, better or more fortunate because of it. After all, you received everything gratis, undeservedly.

So do not get unduly excited about your genes, your race, your ethnic group, your culture or your heritage.

To glory in feeling superior is certainly to wish that you be superior, and, conversely, that others be inferior. This, too, is clearly a form of implicit evil-wishing.

God, who, of course, is infinitely superior to all, gave us the ultimate criterion of humility and well-wishing in the person of Jesus Christ:

"Who, though he was in the form of God, did not regard equality with God something to be grasped" (Phil. 2: 6-7).

Here was God taking the ultimate step of humility, while you are inclined to strut your stuff, however little it may happen to be. You are also included to think of yourself as more fortunate than others because of special gifts.

Jesus warns that you are more obligated and accountable to develop and use God's gifts for your own and the betterment of all your sisters and brothers, for "To whom more has been given, more will be required" (Lk. 12: 48).

Variations of these same criteria of love make their appearance whenever you think of, talk about or act toward any fellow human. Not even your most secret thoughts are spared.

For instance, if you have the habit of gossiping about others, you are certainly in violation of one of the main criteria of love: for gossip is clearly evil-wishing.

Likewise, the same criterion holds you in a vice grip if you are one of those who cannot wait till bad news breaks. Beware if you savor the wildfires of bad news.

Rejoicing over the misfortune of others is bad news; but the worst news of all is to be galled when others do evil; for "love... does not rejoice over wrongdoing" (1 Cor. 13: 6).

And so it goes with all the criteria of love, most of which are broached in chapter 13 of 1 Corinthians. The Italians sum it up best in their standard way of saying I love you: "Ti voglio bene." Literally, "I wish you well."

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce held a very successful membership drive the first week in February.

I know there were a lot of directors and members who worked very hard on this special campaign, and I think each and everyone should be complimented on a job well done.

I would also like to welcome the over 100 new members to the chamber.

It takes the work and efforts of everyone to help make a chamber of commerce successful.

Over the year, the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce accomplishes much for a staff of two along with many, many volunteers.

Among the five top priorities for the chamber in 1993 are education, beautification, ambassadors club, public relations/tourism and a parkway commission.

This year you will be hearing much about the above five items along with many more from your chamber.

As a for instance, on Tuesday of this week, Hancock County's Chamber of Commerce with others along the Mississippi Gulf Coast, will sponsor a "Mississippi Legislative Reception" in Jackson.

Many from the area will be journeying to Jackson for this reception.

The chamber sponsors Morning Editions, After Hours, Grand Openings, public forums, etc., along with its general role in providing information for many requests its receives from across the nation each week.

The chamber means so much to Hancock County. Thanks to each and everyone for your support.

P.S. Don't forget the Krewe of Nereids Mardi Gras parade, Highway 90, Waveland/Bay St. Louis at 1 p.m. today.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi
Economic Council

M/E
E/C

Now that we have it, what do we do with it?

Much of what we hear on the news these days focuses on the serious budget problems facing our nation as well as our states. The federal deficit continues to climb, and more and more states are battling the high cost of the business of government. Mississippi is positioned in a positive light compared to the other states, as estimated tax revenues continue to grow beyond early predictions. Some estimates show revenue projections of more than $100 million above what was originally anticipated.

The rub comes in deciding how to use the additional money. There are various camps springing up in the Legislature, each full of suggestions on the best way to spend what we don't often have. Some are calling for a pay increase for legislators, some for a pay increase for judges. Some want to use the money as a revolving loan fund to assist small businesses.

The decision on how to appropriate these funds should be reached carefully and thoughtfully. There is too much at stake for any surplus to be tossed away; there is too much temptation to spend the money on plans that have little or no long-term benefits.

We all know how good it feels to get a little extra money in our wallets, perhaps through a bonus at work or a tax refund or a gift. We all know how easy it is to want to spend that money on something we don't really need, and how hard it can be to save that money or invest it in something that could provide future returns.

Whatever decision the Legislature makes, let's hope that it's a wise one. We may not have this chance again for a while.

Happy
Valentine's Day!

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator
Trent Lott

Homosexuals in the military

The new president's determination to keep a campaign promise to lift the ban on gays and lesbians in the military has created a firestorm of opposition throughout Mississippi, the country, the Congress and the military.

My offices in Mississippi and Washington were flooded with calls — well over 5,000 with only 50 favoring lifting the ban. I also received more than 1,000 letters from Mississippians on the issue, only 16 for removing the ban.

Mississippians weren't the only ones calling and writing. Nearly 2 million Americans called the Washington offices of their Senators and Representatives during the five days immediately following the announcement, according to phone records (84,000 calls a day is average). Thousands, if not millions, more tried to call the White House as well, but few got through.

Like the vast majority of those who called, I believe the president picked the wrong campaign promise to keep. The administration didn't think it through. They didn't consult with the Joint Chiefs of Staff or Congressional leaders until the decision was already made. And the decision was wrong.

The President should have considered the impact that lifting this 50-year-old ban would have on military readiness, enlistments, recruitment, military discipline and order.

I have been working with other Senators and Congressmen to defeat this effort to allow avowed homosexuals to openly serve in the military. As a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, I strongly believe that lifting this ban, especially in the way that the administration is trying to do it, will have dire consequences on the finest military the world has ever seen.

The president should listen to people like General Colin Powell, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and General Norman Schwarzkopf, who led our troops in Operation Desert Storm. Both have strongly opposed lifting this ban.

Most members of Congress came back to Washington in January ready to go work to tackle the important issues of the economy, the deficit and jobs. That was the message from the American people in last year's election.

But, somewhere along the line, President Clinton got his priorities mixed up by bringing up lifting the ban in the first week of this administration. I believe the American people want to take care of the bigger problems like the economy, health care, education and crime before dealing with issues like lifting the ban.

Now the president is saying he'll wait six months before taking any further action on lifting the ban, but he still plans to lift it in July. That's the wrong way to go.

State Health Officer pressured into resigning

It's tragic that the Fordice Administration—you know, the one which was going to be above politics—has seen to it that Dr. Alton Cobb, the State Health Officer for the past 20 years, and one of the greatest public servants I've known, was put out to pasture.

Cobb, now 64, was not planning to stay on beyond mid-1994 anyway. But after serving through five state administrations without any serious political interference (no mean feat!) the Fordicians have come along and pulled the rug out from under him.

Under harassment from the State Board of Health which Fordice aides helped generate, Cobb resigned as of January 1 to go into a private non-profit group seeking to improve health care.

The Board of Health didn't fire him, and Cobb probably could have weathered the storm, but as he said, "I was tired and it wasn't worth taking that kind of pressure." Not only was he getting it from his own board and the governor's office, but Cobb also was being hounded by the State Personnel Board in making personnel changes.

What brought the whole vendetta against Cobb to a boiling point was his refusal to grant a certificate of need (CON) to River Oaks Hospital in suburban Jackson for construction of an obstetrics unit covering one floor in an $8.7 million medical office building adjacent to the hospital.

Cobb had insisted that the hospital needed the CON, which he has sole authority to grant certificates for any capital improvements, exceeding $1 million, to construct the baby birthing unit. The hospital had contended it was spending slightly less than $1 million for the unit.

Atty. Gen. Mike Moore supported the state health officer's decision. So did two other major hospitals, Mississippi Baptist and Woman's who filed a lawsuit against River Oaks to stop construction of the obstetrics unit.

Then the governor's office got into the act. On a visit to see Gov. Fordice at his 20th floor office in the Sillers Building, Cobb was told the governor was busy. But Andy Taggart, the governor's top aide, motioned to Cobb to follow him down on an elevator.

On the ride to the bottom, Taggart proceeded to twist Cobb's arm to approve the certificate for River Oaks. Cobb replied, "I'm not going to do it." As he departed, Taggart told Cobb he would "hear more about this."

There was already a clique of Cobb foes on the Board of Health, led by Don Felts, a nursing home operator for Greenville, who a year or so before tried to force Cobb to fire Mendal Kemp, the head of licensure in the health department. Felts' complaint was that Kemp's inspectors were too tough on his nursing homes and it was costing him money.

Cobb had told Felts he was not going to get rid of Kemp, who is nationally recognized in his field, "unless you get rid of me."

So, with Taggart fanning the fire, the Cobb critics on the board kept turning up the heat. One move backed by the Fordice forces was made to take the authority for issuing CONs away from Cobb and require the whole board to approve certificates. It failed by a 4-3 vote.

Significantly, the Legislature had handed the certification authority for hospital and nursing home construction to the state health officer in 1986 because a commission used previously had become a political farce.

Now Fordice, and the Cobb foes on the Board of Health, are backing legislation to give the certification authority back to the board.

Another outgrowth of the fiasco that brought about Cobb's departure is a move by some board members to change the qualifications for the state health officer so that he does not have to be a physician.

Cobb had taken other slings and arrows the past year from not only Fordice, but also U.S. Sen. Trent Lott who seems to have a lot of clout with his fellow Republican. Lott became involved in behalf of a Health Department nurse from Batesville who was fired by Cobb along with several other nurses after a home health care program in the area was botched.

The fired nurse for whom Lott went to bat had been sacked by Cobb on grounds of racial discrimination. Later the state Personnel Board agreed with Cobb's action.

There was also the instance of Fordice sending a state Highway patrol investigator down to Pascagoula to check on Cobb's firing of a sanitation worker who had done such things as ride around for three days with the head of a suspected rabid dog in the trunk of his car after the dog had bitten a small girl.

The fired sanitation worker (who was still a probationary employee) got both Lott and Fordice to go to bat for him. But the firing stuck.

So Alton Cobb, who brought Mississippi's public health program out of the dark ages and helped save thousands of lives (black infant deaths which were at a rate of 60 to 1,000 before he came, had been reduced by two-thirds in 1992, better than the national average) is pushed out.

Great public servants don't deserve that sort of treatment.

Recycling bins placed for parade

Gulf Coast Recycling (GCR) has placed recycling bins at two Hwy. 90 locations for use by parade spectators today. One will be located at the Mississippi Power Company building, Dunbar Avenue and the other at the Majik Market convenience store, Washington Street. The bins will remain until Tuesday and repositioned in time for Mardi Gras.

Materials acceptable for recycling will be aluminum cans, clear brown and green glass bottles. Broken bottles cannot be recycled. These recycling drop-off bins are manufactured locally by Gulf Coast Recycling and are available for lease or purchase. In conjunction with the recently contracted Bay St. Louis curbside recycling program, GCR is offering the service to the city at no cost. Parade goers might also consider taking along their own garbage bags to 'stash their trash,' suggested a Chamber of Commerce beautification committee member.

Diamondhead motel foreclosure unlikely

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
The publication of a foreclosure notice arouses little concern for Day's Inn general manager Kathleen Simpson, who reported business as usual Friday at the Diamondhead motel. Simpson said, the foreclosure notice came as no surprise to owner George Gibalski of Hotel Corp. of Mississippi. "We have been meeting with banks and lawyers for several months now," she added. "We have 28 days to decide what to do (concerning the foreclosure), but we are not in jeopardy until August." Hancock Bank began publication of a foreclosure notice Thursday in the name of Quality Inn citing default in terms and conditions of Deed of Trust. Simpson explained conditions with the bank included timely payment of taxes. For two years, LM&G Corp. of Jackson has purchased the taxes on the Day's Inn. Should they pay for the third year this August, the property changes hands. Simpson said, "About $144,000 in back taxes are owed, and there is no question they will be paid." She explained that LM&G is a large corporation which purchases all the delinquent taxes in bulk. They do it for the 12 percent interest, not the property. She added, many companies allow their taxes to lapse, depending on the cash flow that year. Hotel Corp. earned more money in 1992 than in 1990, making them more financially able to pay the debt.

circuit clerk's office, located in the county courthouse. To register to vote in the municipal election, a person must be a citizen of that municipality at least 30 days and 18 years of age on or before the general election day.

QUALIFYING AS CANDIDATES
For persons who want to run for municipal office, the qualifying deadline is Friday, April 2. May 4 is the primary election, with run-offs on May 18 if necessary. The general election pitting party primary winners will be June 8. Candidates for political party primaries must pay a $10 filing fee to the clerk and submit a written Statement of Intent, which will be forwarded to the local political executive committee.

Independent candidates must file a petition signed by at least 50 qualified voters of the municipality or ward, if the municipality has a population of 1,000 or more; or at least 15 qualified voters of the municipality or ward with a population less than 1,000. These petitions must be submitted to the municipal clerk to certify the signatures before the qualifying deadline.

Chamber endorses only one map representative

Hancock County Chamber of Commerce executive director Cindy Vernon reports some confusion over various companies claiming to be representing the Chamber. "There are apparently a number of advertising/map companies in the area at this time that are stating they are representing the Chamber," said Vernon. "The only company in the area at this time with this authority is Mosher-Adams. They are the only ones who can produce a statement to this effect with my signature," she said. Ginger Nunley, Mosher-Adams representative, is working out of the Chamber office at 412 Hwy. 90, Bay St. Louis. For additional information, call 467-9048.

Circus comes to Diamondhead

Special to the Echo
The "Greatest Show on Earth" was held under the Diamondhead Country Club Big Top Saturday, Jan. 30 to honor and entertain the Land Krewe's King Paul Sneyr and Queen Gisela Rainey.

Ringmasters putting on this show were the M. Bauers, B. Calhoun, L. Cottons, C. Coutures, L. Halls, F. Jaumonts, F. Jeromes, B. Reddocks and the M. Ruths.

Upon approaching the "Big Top," the familiar calliope circus music could be heard loud and clear. Bill Reddock, the barker, with his cane and top hat, welcomed guests.

Once inside the mezzanine, unusual animals (from Bahner's Zoo) such as loveable monkeys, a six-foot voracious Exxon tiger, a fierce lion, a shy leopard, huge penguin in his tux, and a very pink elephant were seen in 3 x 5 ft. circus cages made by Lou Cotton.

A Ringling Bros. touch was added with large posters on easels (1928-1993) which were obtained from their headquarters in Florida and Virginia.

Concession stands with red and white striped canopies served as beverage and cotton candy stands. They were designed and built by Stan Robert.

Guests entered the main dining area through a huge archway of colorful balloons erected by Sue Jerome.

Table decorations were clowns in Mardi Gras colors holding clusters of balloons designed by Sue Jerome and Betty Reddock.

Ringmasters Diane Calhoun and Olive Ruth presented the king and queen their gifts of clown music boxes.

Afterwards an announcement was made that the "Clowns" and indeed they did in a motorized circus decorated cart made and driven by Harold Marshall. Clowns were Mary Bauer, Nina Cotton, Sue Jerome and Betty Reddock.

They were followed by the head ringmaster Jean Jaumont, clad in a red glittery frock tail coat and top hat. A whistle was blown followed by the big announcement, "Let the Circus Begin."

God's House
Of Worship

After being on a long trip, you know the feeling you have as you get closer to home? Very few things can match that feeling.

The uplift you receive when you attend your house of worship is akin to that feeling. Nothing can take place of regular worship and fellowship at the church or synagogue of your choice.

AVAIL YOURSELF OF THE OPPORTUNITY TO WORSHIP AND HONOR YOUR CREATOR THIS WEEK.

Tax assistance volunteers trained for helping Gulf Coast residents management center clientele. The training held by local IRS representatives prepares volunteers by giving tax updates and reviewing special requirements of the VITA help others and actually enjoy what to some is the drudgery of preparing taxes.

The VITA program is aimed at low and middle income families who find the cost of a paid professional prohibitive but need tax assistance or questions answered.

Income tax assistance is free through this program and sites are usually located in libraries and community centers.

Those using the VITA program may wish to prepare their own taxes with the assistance of a volunteer or may have the return prepared for them.

VITA volunteers select from the 1040EZ, the 1040A, and the 1040 to complete the appropriate form for each individual's tax situation. They assist in determining filing status and allowable personal exemptions.

They review the individual's last year's tax forms plus the necessary income and expense documentation to prepare additional forms and schedules including schedules A and B, Earned Income Credit, and Child Care Credit.

Volunteers typically do not complete complicated tax returns such as those with self-employment income involving numerous business expense deductions, tax planning, or depreciation of equipment.

This year volunteers have been alerted to identify those families eligible for Earned Income Credit. In past years, IRS has often given the credit to eligible families even when the required Schedule EIC was not completed.

This will no longer be true and it is especially important that eligible families be aware of this form as they file income taxes in 1993.

Volunteers will be looking for those whose addresses have changed and completing Form 8822 to make that change with the IRS. This will insure receipt of next year's tax forms and booklets for the taxpayer who has moved.

Another change I was especially glad to see is one volunteers will be pointing out to those with limited self-employment income and expenses.

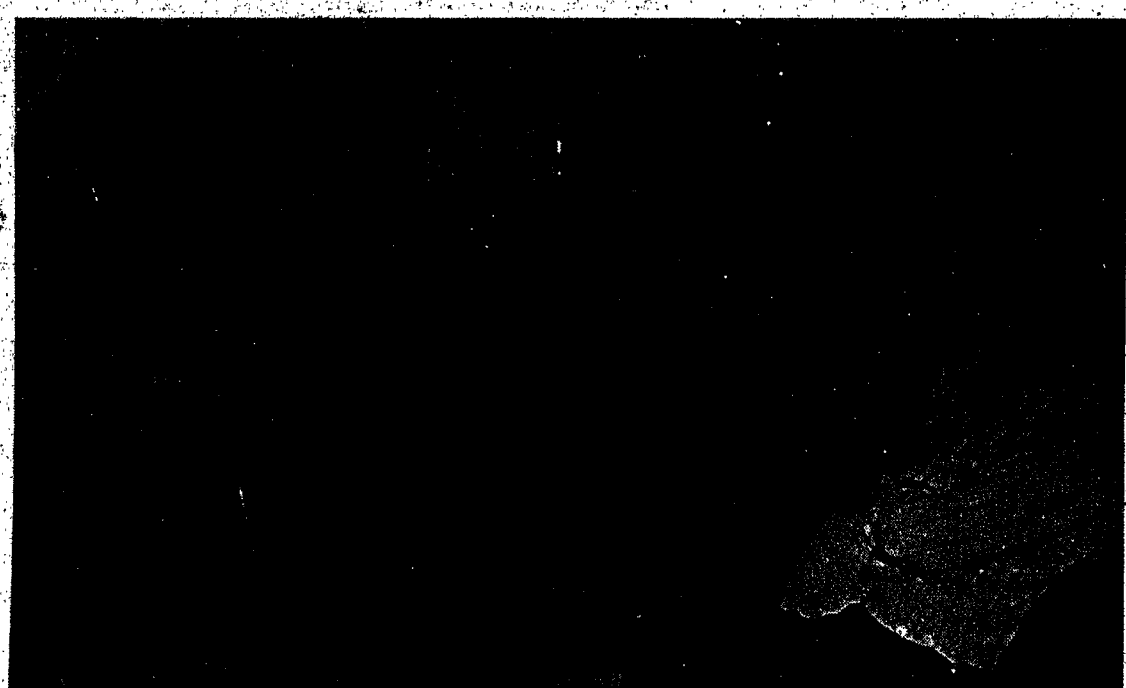

It is Schedule C-EZ for those with gross self-employed income of $25,000 or less and business expenses of $2,000 or less. It just makes the process of filing Schedule C simpler.

For persons like my husband who sporadically earns money at his avocation, singing and playing the guitar, it will save a little time for his tax preparer and wife.

AARP volunteers are at the Bay St. Louis Library Wednesdays from 12:30-5:30 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m.-2:30 p.m. to assist the elderly. VITA volunteers help Thursdays, 11-2.

McGruff House started

Pictured above are Officer Don Ocho, Public Relations Director for the Crime Prevention Unit, and McGruff House volunteers at the Bay St. Louis Crime Prevention Office in their first meeting to kick-off the program in this area. The volunteers, who must be approved after screening procedures, pledge to provide children with security and help in emergency or frightening situations such as being bullied, followed or hurt. The Crime Prevention Office plans to have five to seven sessions with several couples of volunteers per session. Officers Ocho and Jim Clark are in charge of the program.
